

Institute for Education

The institute for education is a multicultural immersion experience that allows participants to learn and interact with the local culture and tour through the program's host community.

Institute participation is first reserved for counselors, but can also include counseling students and individuals of varying professions. Each individual's professional identity will complement their learning experience. Learning activities from the local community will contribute towards continuing education credits.

The program also provides a foundation for counselors, counseling students and other professionals to build new relationships and possibly return to the host country for further volunteer collaboration independent of the institute.

Learning Objectives

Professional counseling and orientation and ethical practice:

Participants will learn and perform specific strategies for outreach to the members of the local community.

Social and cultural diversity:

Participants will learn about different aspects of the local culture through direct interaction with members of the community.

Human growth and development:

Participants will be introduced to available resources that provide mental health support for the community.

Counseling and helping relationships:

Participants will learn evidence-based techniques to build healthy relationships with members of the local community.
